Provo City fireman inspects damage left by a fire Sunday night in the Pennsbury Apartment complex. A fire began in the kitchen after fumes from cleaning fluid apparently ignited with the pilot light of a gas range. The kitchen and living room were considered a total loss.

Flaze guts student apartment

A gutted two rooms of an apartment in the Pennsbury Apartment Complex at 546 North 400 East Sunday night. The apparent cause of the fire was a flammable liquid ignited in the kitchen. Provo City Fire Chief Stan I. said, Shelley Clemens, a tenant in the burned apartment, said she was cleaning paint brushes she had used on an object and had poured the cleaning fluid down the drain. It happened so fast. I was cleaning the brushes on the floor next to the sink and fumes from the cleaning fluid were ignited by the stove's pilot light.

After that the whole room went up," she said. "I ran into the bedroom and told my roommates to get out. They went out and told the other people in the complex that the apartment was on fire, and to get out. I ran immediately to my fiancé's apartment and called the fire department."

"We were very lucky that no one was seriously injured. After we got out of the apartment, the windows blew out and flames came rolling out," she said.

Douglas Nuttall, Provo City Battalion Chief, said the fire was contained to the front two rooms of the apartment, but said that these rooms were totally destroyed. He estimated the damages to the structure at approximately $10,000.

After the fire was extinguished, the girls were allowed to enter the apartment and take what things they could salvage. The contents of the back rooms were heavily damaged by smoke, apartment manager Ted Potter said.

"I'm getting married in about one week, and this isn't exactly the way I wanted to start," Miss Clemens added.

White House sources say

Soviets prepared to invade Poland

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter conferred Sunday with the National Security Council over the Polish and a White House official said a Soviet intervention and "could take place because preparations for it are under way."

White House said in an announcement that Soviet leaders "for possible . . . intervention in Poland" have completed.

Senior White House official stepped back from an assertion made last week that a Soviet intervention in Poland was imminent. The official stated Sunday: "As of now, we're not in a position to say whether it is imminent or not. We are in a position to note that it could take place because preparations for it are completed."

"We have the hope that no such intervention will take place," White House said in a written statement handed to

Before he went to church Sunday morning, Carter conferred with his Special Coordinating Committee, chaired by Zbigniew Brzezinski, his national security assistant, and made up of security council officials who form a "crisis management committee."

The White House statement was essentially similar to one made Friday by Adm. Daniel Murphy, deputy assistant secretary of defense for policy review, who said Soviet forces were ready to move into Poland.

But it was the first acknowledgement by the White House that the Soviet activities, which had been monitored for some time, appeared complete.

"This has a great deal more weight, coming from the White House," said Deputy White House press secretary Ray Jenkins.

White House officials would not say whether the United States had determined that there had been a change in the Soviet buildup since Friday.

They said, however, that there had been no change "as of now" in the status of U.S. forces.

Soviet Foreign Ministry officials in Moscow were unavailable for comment Sunday night on the White House statement.

In Syria, Jordan conflict

Border troop strength cut

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Tanks and troops rolled back on both sides of the Syria-Jordan border Sunday after a two-week military confrontation pushed the two Arab countries to the brink of war, official Syrian sources reported.

The sources, who declined to be identified, said the full-scale pullback began Saturday after a mediation effort by Saudi Arabia and that about 25 percent of the forces on both sides had been withdrawn.

There was no immediate word from officials in Amman on Jordanian pullbacks. "We are still taking this seriously," said one Jordanian source of the border crisis that threatened a second conflict in an area already tense over the Persian Gulf war between Iraq and Iran.

Syria began the buildup Nov. 2, deploying a total of 50,000 soldiers and 1,200 tanks on the southern border. Jordan responded by sending and estimated 600 tanks and 30,000 troops to within six miles of the Syrian forces.

The withdrawals reportedly resulted from mediation by Prince Abdullah bin Abdel-Aziz of Saudi Arabia, who shuttled between the Damascus and Amman for four days until both sides agreed to defuse the crisis.

Arab League Secretary General Chadi Kleibi arrived in Damascus Saturday for talks with President Hafez Assad and was expected to travel to Amman for talks with King Hussein. Kleibi was attempting to solve the issues that brought on the war of nerves, Damascus sources said.

In Beirut, an adviser to Palestine Liberation Organization head Yasser Arafat was quoted as saying in an interview that Arab countries will attend a summit of Islamic nations in Saudi Arabia Jan. 24. The session in Mecca might be used to patch up Arab disputes. Khaled Hassan was quoted as telling the Lebanese magazine Monday Morning.

The Syrian-Jordan dispute flared during an Arab foreign ministers gathering in advance of an Arab summit in Jordan Nov. 25-27. Syria led a boycott of pro-Moscow Arab states and the PLO after Damascus demands for a postponement of the summit were ignored.

Those who stayed away from the Amman summit also have tended to support Iran in the Persian Gulf war. Iran, a non-Arab state, is mostly Persian. Jordan has openly backed Iraq and many of the other conservative Arab nations have tended to sympathize with Iraq in the conflict.

Syria's president accused Jordan of seeking a Camp David-style deal with the new U.S. administration of President-elect Ronald Reagan that might undercut what Syria believes should be a united Arab position on the Palestinian issue.

Assad also asserted that Jordan was aiding the Moslem Brotherhood, a secret society of Islamic fundamentalists blamed for a wave of bombing and assassinations in Syria during the last 18 months.

Columbian oil discovery fuels dispute

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The possibility of a major discovery of offshore oil is fueling a border dispute between Colombia and Venezuela, two longtime friends. Both sides talk unofficially of armed conflict.

A former Colombian minister of defense claims an estimated 20 billion barrels of oil are in the disputed area. Geologists say that rock formations and other indicators are promising, but that exploratory wells will have to be drilled to determine exactly what is there.

Exploratory drilling has been held up for almost 20 years because Colombia and Venezuela both claim the area or parts of it.

Two large gulfs in western Venezuela form a rough hourglass, with Venezuela's oil-rich Gulf of Maracaibo on the bottom half of the hourglass, and the Gulf of Venezuela on the top half.

Colombia borders only a small piece of the northwest part of the upper half of the hourglass. But it is in that offshore area and to the north along the continental shelf in the Caribbean that geologists say there is an excellent chance of finding lots of oil.

The present law of the sea ordinarily would fix a boundary equidistant between Colombia and Venezuela. The line would enter from the Caribbean, head south into the mouth of the Gulf of Venezuela and then move sharply toward the western shore of the gulf to a point where the common border of the two countries begins.

But because Venezuela borders 90 percent of the gulf, both sides apparently have recognized that the maritime border in the northern gulf should be much closer to Colombia than to Venezuela, Colombian newspapers have reported.

Presidents Julio Cesar Turbay of Colombia and Luis Herrera of Venezuela are to meet next Wednesday in Honduras and discuss the dispute. They will be in there for the signing of a peace treaty between El Salvador and Honduras.

Colombia and Venezuela "are on the verge of an international conflict" and "Venezuela is preparing its people psychologically for a war with Colombia," retired Gen. Alberto Ruiz, a former Colombian minister of defense and president of Colombia's Association of Retired Military Officers, claimed recently.

"Now is the time to get ready to turn back any threat or intimidation by Venezuela's military," the general said in a broadcast interview.

El Salvador murders studied

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A U.S. presidential commission met Sunday with Roman Catholic leaders and "top military brass" in efforts to determine if the armed forces were involved in the murders of three American nuns and a social worker.

Army Col. Alfonso Adolfo Majano, considered one of the most liberal members of the five-man junta, told reporters Sunday he no longer was on the junta, and two of the three civilian members threatened to resign if violence continued.

Diplomatic sources said they understood armed forces officers had voted Saturday 300-4 to remove Majano as one of the two army colonels on the junta.

The head of El Salvador's Catholic church, Bishop

Arturo Rivera y Damas, blamed the junta for the deaths of the Americans, saying it was responsible for the actions of the armed forces. His statement was read at the Sunday Mass in San Salvador's Metropolitan Cathedral and broadcast throughout the country on radio.

Later in the day the bishop met with the U.S. delegation at his office, according to a U.S. Embassy spokesman.

The spokesman declined to give details, but said the Americans also met Sunday with the country's "top military brass," including the defense minister, Col. Jose Guillermo Garcia. He said the delegation, sent by President Carter, had met Saturday night with two civilian junta members.

Dr. Eyring to speak at devotional

Dr. Henry B. Eyring, noted scientist/educator and Commissioner of Education for the LDS Church will speak Tuesday at the final fall semester Devotional assembly.

Dr. Eyring has been Commissioner of Church Education since Sept. 1, replacing Dr. Jeffrey R. Holland who was appointed from that position to the BYU presidency. Dr. Eyring served as deputy commissioner for three years, preceded by six years as president of Ricks College.

As commissioner, he heads one of the world's largest private educational systems. More than 682,000 students are involved in some phase of the system in 62 countries around the world. Instruction is given in 17 languages within the system.

For nine years prior to his assignment at Ricks College, Dr. Eyring was a professor and administrator at Stanford University in the areas of production management, operations and systems analysis, organizational behavior and management of the total enterprise.

During 1963-1964 school year, he was an Alfred P.

Sloan Jr. Visiting Faculty Fellow at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

He has been a member of the board of directors of McCulloch Corporation since 1974 and the International Health Care Corporation since 1975.

He was also a founder and director of Systems Industries, Inc., in Sunnyvale, Calif., from 1968 to 1970 and director and officer during that same period for Finnigan Instrument Corporation in Sunnyvale.

The commissioner received a bachelor of science degree in physics in 1965 from the University of Utah and his master's and doctoral degrees in business administration from Harvard University in 1959 and 1963, respectively.

With Harold J. Leavitt and William R. Dill, Dr. Eyring co-authored a book entitled "The Organizational World," printed by Harcourt-Brace-Jovanovich, Inc.

The talk will be broadcast live over KBYU-FM and rebroadcast Sunday at 9 p.m. It will be televised on KBYU-TV, Channel 11, three times in business administration: Dec. 30, at 8 p.m.; Dec. 31, at 2 p.m.; and Jan. 4, at 8 p.m.

In a special Christmas message during Sunday night's 14-stake fireside Elder David B. Haight urged students to follow the Savior's example and to provide a spirit of love and service in their homes as they returned for the holiday.

Elder Haight councils all to bring peace, good will

By KENT TINGEY
Universe Staff Writer

Love, through service, is the most powerful force in the world, and those who understand this will have the true spirit of Christmas.

Elder David B. Haight, a member of the LDS Council of the Twelve, advised students and guests at the 14-stake fireside Sunday evening to find this love as they return to their homes over the Christmas holiday.

Elder Haight urged BYU students to give a worldwide tribute to the birth of the Son of Man. "Gifts, songs, reunions, and mistletoe are all a part of Christmas. They represent our desire to make someone happy. We see at Christmas that peace can really come to earth but only through good will to men," he said.

Elder Haight said that we must be humble and full of love if we are to be teachers of the gospel of Jesus Christ. "The gospel of Jesus Christ is a message of peace and salvation for all men and we become a power for good by teaching the things that we learn at BYU. We are the protectors of Christ's true teachings," Elder Haight said.

Elder Haight stressed the importance of blessing those who are not able to return the favor. By doing this, he said, we will have the true spirit of Christ. He exhorted students to be humble at all times as they serve.

When asking students to bless those who are not able to return the favor, Elder Haight referred to the gospel of Luke. "For whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted. Then said he also to him that bade him, When thou makest a dinner or a supper, call not thy friends, or thy brethren, neither thy kinsmen, nor thy rich neighbors; lest they also bid thee again, and a recompense be made thee. But when thou makest a feast, call the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind: And thou shalt be blessed, for they cannot recompense thee: for thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just. And when one of them that sat at meat with him heard these things, he said unto him, Blessed is he that shall eat bread in the kingdom of God." (Luke 14:12-15)

Elder Haight told the story of a man who followed this admonition. He invited the poor, the blind, and those in need to a feast. At the conclusion he recalled his joy when the words he heard were, "God bless you, you have given me hope, and I am going to try again."

Elder Haight likened this story to the students at BYU. "This should happen at BYU. What would happen if we read the gospel and then went out and performed what we had read?" he said. Many aspects of the gospel are difficult for us to understand, but our problems are not what we don't understand, they are doing what we do understand," he said.

Elder Haight urged all students, as they return home for Christmas, to reestablish a personal commitment of excellence. "Do not be talent wasters," he said. "As Jesus said, by their fruits you shall know them."

By drawing close to the Lord you will be

Officials say air rates too high

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Salt Lake City, Tucson and Portland officials complained Friday that their citizens are paying high air fares to subsidize below-cost transcontinental flights.

Marvin Cohen, a Tucson lawyer who heads the Civil Aeronautics Board, said there was no evidence to prove the 2-year-old airline deregulation was causing regional subsidies.

He said the fact that most airlines have been losing millions of dollars during the current recession argues against the existence of subsidies. He also said many carriers charging high regional fares are not in the transcontinental business.

Cohen, a strong advocate of deregulation, said he believed that "if the carriers put the price so high they drive away the traffic and lose more money, they'll have to find some other way to do it."

He blamed high regional fares on increased fuel prices, and said the temporary transcontinental discounts were like "loss leaders" at the supermarket, but that cross-country fares were now back to about pre-deregulation levels.

Cohen presided at the fourth and last of a series of CAB hearings across the country to get comment from medium-sized communities on the effects of airline deregulation.

Thomas O'Sullivan, manager of administration for the Tucson Airport Authority said Tucson's coach fares have increased steadily while service has declined.

"Something is wrong with a system that allows carriers to subsidize their transcontinental prices while increasing prices in other markets," he said.

Cohen asked if the CAB should be mandating per-mile fares if there really are cost differences for operating between small cities as opposed to operating and flying from New York to Los Angeles.

Bill Shea of the Portland International Airport also complained of fare discrimination. He said, for example, that the fare from Portland to San Francisco is $135, while the fare from San Francisco to Chicago is $135.

Paul Gaines, director of airports for the Salt Lake City Airport Authority, said the city "has been the victim of extraordinary fare increases which are completely out of line with industry fare trends."

He said the Salt Lake-New York one-way fare in $335 compared to $125 for Los Angeles to New York. "I know of no real or imagined cost difference which could possibly justify this excessive preference for the larger markets. I firmly believe that the smaller markets are subsidizing heavy losses in the larger long-haul markets," Gaines said.

He said he did not favor a return to rigid price regulation, but was convinced there must be a way to protect small cities from "extreme discrimination."

"I wish I had an answer," he said.

Mike Ferguson of the Montana Aeronautics Board praised the CAB for working out new airline service in his state and said it was "already exceeding market expectations."

Ferguson said he feared the time when the CAB will go out of existence and its functions assigned to the federal Department of Transportation. He said his experience in dealing with the DOT was that "it's almost impossible to get through the bureaucratic layer."

Valley mink rancher pelts trade lucrative

By RUTH HAMILTON
Universe Staff Writer

Pelts selling for an average of $40 a pound are the main source of money in mink ranching. There are few mink ranches here in the Valley. Today, mink is one of the most profitable fur-bearing animals to raise, said Glade Wilkinson, mink rancher and owner of Pelting Service in Orem.

Mink ranching is not for the faint of heart. "I love animals, and that's why I'm in this business. But it's more work than people think," he said.

The nation's exporting trade, mink is in steady demand. Even during deep recession times of the 1970s, breeders who managed to run a business basis were able to show profit. Others went broke.

"When I got started," Wilkinson said, "I purchased most of my mink from those who were failing businesses."

Running the mink farm business is hard, Wilkinson said. "It takes a lot of money to get started in the business."

Types of mink

There is only one species of mink in the United States, although there are a number of varieties differing in size, color and quality of fur. The most heavy mink is the black mink. Other varieties include silver, blue, and brown mink.

Glade Wilkinson of Orem, owner of one of few mink farms in Utah Valley, displays one of his expensive little critters. Mink pelts bring an average of $40 each on the wholesale market, making mink farming a "lucrative" business venture.

Breeders is to mate the best females to the best males," he said. "Proven breeders of good quality should be kept as long as they are of breeding age."

Experienced ranchers line-breed their minks. "Line-breeding is developing and fixing the good qualities in both the sire and the dam, and developing a family line that brings out the quality of both parents," Wilkinson said. "Line-breeding should not be attempted until the breeder can detect defects and can understand which qualities are desirable in the highest type of mink."

The resultant litters should be carefully culled and the best specimens mated back to the original sire and dam, he said. This procedure can be continued for generations, or as long as the original sire and dam are of breeding age.

The breeding season is from the middle of February to the middle of April. Minks are subject to many diseases if they aren't cared for properly. Besides being vaccinated, they must be kept clean and they must have fresh water, said Wilkinson.

"The pelting age begins when the mink is six to seven months old," said Wilkinson. "Pelting season begins in November, and is usually governed by cold weather. A prime pelt is white on the flesh side."

Humane method

The best and surest method of killing mink for pelting is to asphyxiate them with carbon monoxide gas, said Wilkinson. This method does not injure the pelt and is the most humane, he said.

After the minks are skinned, the pelts can be frozen and stored. The fat is removed and the pelts are stretched on wooden boards to dry, he said.

Basically, there are three ways to sell the pelts.

"I sell most of mine 'private treaty,'" he said. "I give them to a middle man who then sells them for export."

Pelts are also sold at auction, or are sold independently to buyers who come out to the ranches.

Minimum wage to increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 5.6 million Americans workers will get a pay increase of 25 cents an hour Jan. 1, but future minimum wage increases are clouded by the election of Ronald Reagan and a more conservative Congress.

The hourly minimum wage will rise from $3.10 to $3.35 New Year's Day, marking the final installment in a series of increases enacted by Congress and signed into law by President Carter in 1977.

Based on a 40-hour work week, the raise means a worker's weekly minimum pay will rise from $124 to $134. The law requires that workers must be paid at time-and-a-half rates for hours in excess of 40 a week.

Miller to be tried for murder

CLEARFIELD, Utah (AP) — Fourth Circuit Judge Cornell Jensen has ordered 15-year-old John P. Miller Jr. bound over for trial in 2nd District Court on charges of first degree murder, kidnapping and forcible sexual abuse, a court spokeswoman said Friday.

Miller's preliminary hearing Friday afternoon was closed to the press and public. The spokeswoman said no hearing date has yet been scheduled for Miller in the district court.

Miller is charged with killing 2-year-old Anne Hoskinson of Clinton, a neighbor girl who disappeared Aug. 5. Her body was found the next morning in a closet in an abandoned house nearby.

Jensen issued the order to close the hearing earlier in the day. The press has petitioned to keep the trial open.

WHY A CAMPING TOUR

- Americans equate camping with "getting away from it all" or "roughing it" in the mountains or other isolated locations. Not so in Europe!
- Europeans have long appreciated the freedom, independence, and good value of camping. Campgrounds are located in all European cities, often within walking distance of downtown. (It's not unusual to see a man wearing top hat and tails emerge from a tent in the Paris facility and head for the opera!)
- European campgrounds are like mini-villages. On the premises most have food stores, TV and recreation rooms, restaurants, bars, and even discos.
- Camping facilities are clean and modern with hot and cold running water and outlets for electric razors and hair dryers.
- In Europe, camping is popular for both men and women students.
- Many campsites have swimming pools, unless, of course, they're located near a river, beach, or lake.
- Campsites are a great place to meet young Europeans who are also on vacation.
- Some nights are spent in hotels.

Y wins in 'Classic' style

By JOHN JACKSON
Universe Sports Editor

Going into the Cougar Classic this weekend, BYU is already looking like the team which won it last year.

It appeared hopeless, but Fred Roberts and the Cougars came from eight points down in the final two and one-half minutes to nudge Utah State, 82-79.

It was reminiscent of the BYU team which came from a seemingly hopeless position to post a three-overtime victory against LaSalle last year in the Classic, a team which won seven of eight close games while compiling a 24-5 record.

And like with the '79-80 team, the present edition needed a Roberts block of a Brian Jackson shot to defeat the Aggies. Seconds remained. BYU led 80-79. Jackson turned and shot into nothing but outstretched arms of the 6-10 forward.

Roberts blocked a Jackson shot last year to preserve an 84-83 Cougar win.

The win gives BYU a 2-1 record, and served as the first blemish on the Aggie record in three outings.

The Cougs scored the first 10 points of the second half as the Ags missed everything from a freebie at the line to a dunk attempt by Leo Cunningham. And the Cougs scored the final 11 points of the game as the Aggies missed everything from open set shots to four free throws by Cunningham.

Two of those free throw misses were understandable. Cunningham was just too dizzy to make them. He earned them when he went up for the bucket which perhaps would have won the game. BYU's Danny Ainge came careening in, half tackling and half grabbing for the ball, and sent Cunningham spinning in air and crashing flat to the floor.

The fans shouted their obscenities. Ainge helped the befuddled Cunningham up, then left the game with his fifth, final and game-winning foul.

That happened with 1:13 left and the Cats down 79-78. Steve Craig snapped the net with a 17-footer to end the Aggie's advantage and Roberts brought up the final margin after his block by canning two at the line.

The game marked the first contest between the two schools since the Greg Anderson — Gary Furniss trade. (Former Cougar Anderson returned from an LDS mission and decided to play in Logan and former Aggie Furniss returned from his LDS mission and chose to play in Provo.)

Furniss may redshirt. Anderson almost led the Aggies past his old teammates. He entered the game midway in the first half and finished with 10 points. At one point his colors fooled the refs. Evidently they thought he still played for the Cougar blue as they handed him the ball for an in-bounds pass when it was the Cougars' out. Anderson passed the ball to Cunningham who was sailing in for a dunk before the refs realized what they had done.

But late in the game Anderson also acted like a Cougar, twice tossing the ball to his old teammates.

He stole BYU's homecoming queen for a wife, but he couldn't steal the game.

Falcons, Cowboys clinch berth

The Atlanta Falcons and Dallas Cowboys on Sunday became the second and third teams to clinch National Football League playoff berths. Their wins helped deadlock two divisions with two weeks to play in the season.

Tim Mazzetti's 37-yard field goal with seven seconds left gave the Falcons a 20-17 victory over Philadelphia. Atlanta, 11-3 and two games ahead of Los Angeles in the NFC West, recovered from a 14-3 deficit to beat the Eagles, who have lost two straight games to fall to an 11-3 mark and a tie in the NFC East with Dallas.

The Cowboys clinched their 14th playoff berth in 15 years as Rafael Septien kicked a 52-yard field goal and Ron Springs scored a 2-yard touchdown to defeat Oakland 19-13.

But the Raiders, 9-5, stayed in a tie with San Diego in the AFC West after Washington upset the Chargers 40-17. The Redskins intercepted five passes, three by Joe Lavender, and Mark Moseley kicked four field goals.

Buffalo quarterback Joe Ferguson hit wide receiver Frank Lewis on a spectacular 30-yard pass play, setting up Nick Mike-Mayer's game-winning 30-yard field goal that beat Los Angeles 10-7 in overtime. The Bills are 10-4 and 1 1/2 games ahead of New England in the AFC East pending the Patriots' Monday night game with Miami, while the Rams are 9-5 and are faced with losing the NFC West title for the first time in eight years.

Minnesota is only 8-6 but still leads the NFC Central by a game as the Vikings rallied from a 10-0 halftime deficit to beat Tampa Bay 21-10. Tommy Kramer had only 63 yards passing before intermission but he had 201 in the second half and engineered two long scoring drives.

Detroit fell out of a tie with the Vikings by losing 24-23 to the St. Louis Cardinals when Ron Green returned a punt 57 yards for a touchdown with 3:40 left.

Quarterback Brian Sipe completed a club-record 30 passes in 41 attempts for 340 yards and a touchdown, a 5-yards to Greg Pruitt in the quarter, to give Cleveland Bay 20-17 victory over the New York Browns, 10-4, stayed in first in the AFC Central, a game Houston, which beat the Pittsburgh Steelers 6-0 last Thursday night. Vince Evans completed 16 passes for 316 yards and touchdowns and Walter Payton three TDs to lead the Chicago 16-7 thrashing of the Green Packers.

Winless New Orleans had lead, but San Francisco came win 38-35 when Ray Wersching a 36-yard field goal with 7:20 overtime.

Jim Breech kicked a 21-yard goal with 12 seconds remaining brilliant Baltimore comeback and give Cincinnati a 34-33. The Bengals led 31-6 before the scored four touchdowns in the quarter to take a 33-31 lead.

Kinjo captures all-around in Y Cup

BYU's Masahiko Kinjo won first place in men's all-around competition in the Cougar Cup gymnastics meet Friday at BYU. His performance, before 1,000 fans, was part of a second-place finish for the mixed men's and women's Cougar team.

Arizona State took home the winning team honors, finishing only two-tenths of a point ahead of the Cougars. The meet, which also included the University of Oregon, was unique in that it featured three men and three women from each school playing as a team.

Kinjo took first place in three events including pommel horse competition with a score of 9.2, vaulting with a score of 9.55, and parallel bars at 9.4. His overall score of 55.25 merited him first place among the men. He also tied for first place in the floor exercise with a score of 9.35.

Of his performance, Kinjo said, "I'm not consistent yet. I still need to work hard."

Winning all-around honors for the women was Jeri Cameron of Arizona State, who turned in a score of 37 after winning three of the four women's events. She had a score of 9.45 in vaulting, 9.45 on the uneven parallel bars, and 9.5 in the floor exercise.

The balance beam competition was won by Jan Shelly of BYU, who mounted the 4-inch-wide beam via a full flip off the springboard.

BYU Coach Wayne

Young said he felt very good about his team's performance. The Cougars came from behind, making up considerable ground through their fine performance in vaulting, to almost win the meet.

Indoor tennis honors go to Ute's Tsomas

Third-seeded John Tsomas of the University of Utah defeated top-seeded Jeff Robbins, also of the U of U, to win the NCAA Region Seven Indoor Singles Championship at BYU Saturday.

Tsomas, who battled his way through a draw of 36 players, won the Saturday match 3-6, 6-4, 6-3. He now moves on to the NCAA Championships.

BYU's Matt Murphy, who advanced further than any other BYU player, lost to Robbins Friday 6-4, 6-1.

Also on Friday, Tsomas defeated Barry Nissenbaum of Weber State 6-3, 6-3.

BRIGHAM YOUNG UNIVERSITY STUDY ABROAD SPRING TERM IN JAPAN

Students of Japan and the Japanese! Do you have a desire to study the Japanese language, history, and culture first-hand? If so, the BYU Study Abroad program is offering an unusual study experience that you will not want to miss: an eight-week field seminar to Japan.

Spring Term in Japan is an academic program designed for students who have already had an introduction to the Japanese language (via first or second year college classes, mission experience, etc.), but who wish to expand their knowledge and experience. Enrolled students will be able to earn as many as nine credit hours.

The program begins on the Provo campus with a week of intensive study and orientation. Then the group will fly to Hong Kong for three days, on to Taiwan for two days, and then to Japan.

The itinerary in Japan will include the ancient capital cities of Nara, Kyoto, and Kamakura, as well as sites in southwestern Hiroshima and the Tokyo area. Trips will be structured so as to offer an introduction to the traditional culture of Japan while at the same time immersing the student in one of the world's most vibrant and exciting modern societies. Temples, shrines, mountain huts, markets, theatres, government offices, museums—all will be included in what should be a truly comprehensive experience with Japanese culture.

A significant feature of this experience will be a chance for each student to rehearse and improve his language skills in a genuine, native context. Language classes will be a part of the daily routine, and life in Japanese society will offer an unique opportunity for immediate and constant reinforcement.

At the end of the Japanese experience, students can look forward to five days of study and review at BYU-Hawaii Campus.

FCC considers community TV

By NOLAN CRABB
Assistant News Editor

What America needs, according to the Federal Communications Commission, is more television stations. But the FCC is talking about stations that would bring a new twist to the TV screen.

This new brand of TV programming may never draw the crowds to the set that J.R. Ewing does, but federal officials say it could be beneficial.

They are considering allowing low power, non-commercial, community stations to go on the air.

This venture into community TV isn't new; many universities, including BYU, are involved in non-commercial television. But because of their low power, the new stations would be limited to a shorter broadcasting range. That would allow more stations to operate on the same frequency.

Noncommercial radio has been a part of broadcasting for almost 30 years, said Nan Rubin, vice president for station services of the National Federation of Community Broadcasters.

"Educational radio and TV have been around for quite a while," she said. "But community radio is becoming more visible all the time with the opening of stations not owned by universities. These stations serve the needs of their community with alternative programming to commercial stations."

Applications accepted
The commission is already taking applications from people who want to own one of the new low power TV stations but one engineer in Washington, D.C. said it could take a long time to process the applications.

"It's the worst damn mess I've ever seen," he said. "They haven't made any rulings on the stations yet. Right now it's a great big can of worms as far as the engineering department is concerned."

He said applications for the new stations are being taken, but nothing is being done about them until the rulings are made permanent and "... that could take a long time," he said.

Miss Rubin said she thinks the new TV stations will be a long time in coming.

"It takes a while for the commission to move and make the ruling," she said. "I think it could be at least a year before anything is done. Not only will the ruling itself take a while to bring up, but I think broadcasters will protest."

"There just aren't any power rulings made yet," one engineer said, "but I can predict about what it will be. We're thinking about allowing 100 watts for VHF stations, (channels 2 through 13), and 1,000 watts for UHF stations, (channels 14 to 83)."

"That translates to a transmitting radius of about 30 miles per station," he said.

The stations will be owned by private owners, as the commercial stations are, commission officials said.

Two stations in Utah
Two community stations are presently operating in Utah which are not owned by educational institutions. These stations offer a "... new alternative to commercial programming," as one station manager put it.

One of Utah's community stations is in Park City. KPCW went on the air July 2, 1980. Unlike most stations people are accustomed to listening to, KPCW is a noncommercial station, receiving money from donations of the public and some from local businesses who wish to contribute.

"We're the only station in two counties," said Blair Feulner, station manager. "We have to provide programming that best suits the community's needs."

Feulner said KPCW's beginnings were remarkable. "I think we built the radio station with less money than anyone around," he said. "I just completed our year-end tax returns and they indicate that we put this thing together for about $15,000."

He said the key to a low overhead is using volunteer help to build and run the station.

"The two engineers who helped us were from Portland. They caught a freight train down here and the town residents fed them and gave them a place to sleep. All the carpentry work was done by a local carpenter."

Feulner said the station's goal is not only to involve people with the station, but with the community.

"I've never seen people come together on a project like the town did on this one," he said.

He said the station schedules news and information programs as well as a musical format which plays everything from country music to jazz.

Students broadcast

Eleven to 14-year-old students are also given the chance to broadcast on the station, doing "... whatever they want to do."

He said the students often read news or play whatever they like. "It's the only time of the day we play any disco," he said.

Feulner said it is to early to determine the success of the station.

"We're still in the honeymoon stage," he said. "If people don't like what we're doing, they aren't saying much about it. The advantage about having a station in a small town like this is after a day of broadcasting, you can go to a bar or a friend's place and hear from other people in town how you're doing."

Utah's other community radio station which is not owned by an educational institution is KRCL in Salt Lake City. It's programming is vastly different from that of the Park City station.

Voice for minorities

"The station tries to serve as the voice for the minorities who have never really had a voice in commercial radio," said Linda Reeder, station programmer in charge of handicapped programming.

Miss Reeder said the station's schedule includes public affairs programs and programming for senior citizens and listeners of various ethnic backgrounds.

"The Salt Lake City station is a good model to look at when dealing with community radio," Ms. Rubin said. "They're doing some things that are exciting in radio, especially in noncommercial radio."

Ms. Rubin said though the future of low power TV is uncertain, community radio is still moving forward.

"A lot of people in community radio are interested in getting into low power community TV," she said. "We strongly encourage people to get into low power TV, but I think it's important for the people in radio to stay in radio and leave the TV to others."

WATS line use cases will go to Standards

By KEVIN ALLAN
Assistant News Editor

Citing "mitigating circumstances," BYU Security Police officials say they have decided to ask that misdemeanor charges not be filed against more than a dozen students involved in the illegal use of a university "WATS" telephone line.

The students, who made long distance telephone calls to their families and friends by using university numbers, will be referred to University Standards instead of facing charges in Provo Circuit Court, according to Detective Tana Johnson of the campus force.

We called the city attorney and asked him if he did consider not pressing charges this time," Mrs. Johnson said. "He told us to handle it through University Standards and he wouldn't file charges.

We just did not find sufficient evidence to prove that they (the students) had any intention to defraud the university when they committed the offense," Capt. Wes Sherwood. "They made the calls but they were misled."

Mrs. Johnson explained, "We normally wouldn't do this, but we didn't feel the students were involved had any criminal intent."

We still intend to file charges against one individual," Capt. Sherwood said. The department has warrant out for the arrest of the student who it suspects masterminded the telephone calls. That individual, he said, left town about six weeks ago and is the subject of investigation in connection with several other offenses in addition to the phone calls.

Several people who read a story about the incident in The Daily Universe have approached BYU Security Police with information on the missing student's possible whereabouts, Mrs. Johnson said. "We are people checking into those out-of-state leads I can't disclose where, because we don't want to der the investigation."

It had been reported that the decision not to press charges came as the result of a phone call to BYU Security Police by the attorney/father of one of the implicated students. Officials said that such was not the case.

The decision was made previous to my conversation with him (the father)," Mrs. Johnson said. If anything, she added, the phone conversation prompted her to further consider filing charges.

Woman detective at Y promoted to sergeant

The promotion of BYU Security Police's sole female detective to sergeant is possibly the first such promotion in Utah's history, authorities said. Tana Johnson, one of BYU's five "investigators" or detectives, is to be promoted December 17, according to Capt. Wes Sherwood of the campus police force. At the time, he said, several changes will be made in the agency's administration.

Rich Townsend, head of BYU Security Police's patrol division, will leave the force to "pursue a new venture," Mrs. Johnson said. He will be replaced by Sgt. Greg Barber, who now directs the Criminal Services division. Mrs. Johnson will replace Barber in Technical Services.

It's kind of a big step for me," Mrs. Johnson said. "I don't think there is any other female in the state who has done it, as far as I've been able to ascertain."

"She's certainly unique," Sherwood said. "We have had that her female point of view has been a definite advantage on certain things," he continued, "and we are anxious to give her a chance to do more."

As director of Technical Services," Mrs. Johnson said, "my responsibilities will include records and communications, supplies and inventory and public relations and crime prevention."

Tana has previously done a lot of work with crime prevention programs," Sherwood said. "Her influence has been well received." Other areas she has responsibilities in during her five years on the force include drug and sex offense investigations, she said.

Utah's oil deposits waiting to be tapped

VERNAL, Utah (AP) — Beneath the surface of the Uintah Basin lie huge deposits of tar sands and oil shale representing a potentially vast source of energy.

The extent of the resource hasn't been delineated, but many experts say a large percentage of the nation's energy needs will be met when scientists learn how to tap the resource at an affordable price.

One of the richest oil shale deposits in Utah, and possibly the world, is beneath a 60 to 100-mile-wide strip running generally eastward across Uintah County.

Current estimates are at least 90 billion barrels of oil can be recovered from the shale with today's technology. The United States consumes just over 6.6 billion barrels a year.

"You can argue that figure both up and down," says Chuck Henderson, director of the Uintah Basin Energy Planning Council.

Beneath the basin are three big tar sands deposits. And the basin has a natural gas field that has been producing since 1924 and oil wells in production since 1948.

Henderson says seven projects to tap basin shale and tar sands are in progress. While one project — the smallest — is at the production stage, most are still in the development phase.

"We're still in a 'getting ready' situation in oil shale," Henderson says. "The companies know where the shale is and now are learning how to get it out."

The first substantial commercial production is expected in 1984 with peak activity around 1993.

The cost of the facilities almost staggers the imagination. "They're talking about $130 million for a large retort," says Henderson. "And the cost of the entire facility could be as much as $2 billion."

Impressed — and somewhat concerned — about the scope of the energy production is state Sen. Glade Sowards, who is involved in fuel transportation.

"We're told that within a 100-mile radius of the Four Corners area, there is as much oil as in all the OPEC nations combined," he says. "But a lot of it isn't recoverable with present technology."

"But if our scientists can develop the technology and we can resolve the environmental problems — and we're going to do both — the nation will be a good, long step toward energy independence."

Sowards said that at a recent meeting of the Utah Energy and Conservation Council, "an Exxon vice president told us his company expects to employ 22,000 miners and 6,000 support personnel when it gets its oil shale facility into peak operation."

Major oil shale developments in the basin include:

—Parasho: Feasibility studies are underway toward eventual construction of a $2 billion facility. Production is expected to start in 1984 with a 6,000 to 10,000-barrel-per-day capacity. Plant construction will create 800 temporary jobs with more than 500 permanent jobs anticipated.

—White River: A joint venture involving Sohio, Phillips and Sun oil companies. Plant construction is scheduled for 1984, and production in 1989 with more than 2,000 employees.

—Tosco Sand Wash: Preliminary engineering is completed and digging of a production shaft is expected sometime next year. A processing plant with a 43,000-barrel-a-day capacity is expected to start in 1988 with up to 1,200 employees.

The Geokinetics Inc. plant some 60 miles southwest of Vernal already has one retort capable of production and another under construction. It hopes to be in full commercial production in 1982.

At-A-Glance

International Studies — The Center for International and Area Studies will sponsor a brown bag discussion today at noon in 357 ELWC. Dr. Arnold Green of the American University at Cairo will speak on "The Islamic Revolution: Iran and Egypt."

Food Production — Ed Bishop, director of LDS Welfare Food Production, will lecture about LDS Welfare Food Production Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in 321 ELWC. The public is invited.

International Student Christmas Dinner — Persons interested in inviting an international student who cannot go home for Christmas to a Christmas dinner at their home can contact Lorraine Drake in the International Student Office, 2695. International students interested in participating contact the office before Dec. 18.
